

Black History Across Many Fields

Name / chosen name: _____

Use after the activity. Open responses can differ; accept drawings, spoken responses and supported writing.

Ideas supported by the text

Black history is part of American history throughout the year. It includes families, communities, work, science, literature, sport and efforts to challenge slavery and racial discrimination. One biography cannot represent all Black people or experiences.

Use reliable records to ask what happened, when it happened and how people worked together. An achievement may involve changing knowledge, sharing skills or helping a community—not only being the first person to do something. Notice people and groups whose work is less often discussed.

What to look for

A response that follows the instructions, communicates an idea and uses a reason or source where requested. Original creative work and different preferences are welcome. Do not grade personal identity, family details or access needs.

Offer a smaller first step, an adult reading prompts, pointing, a scribe or a partner. For an extension, ask the learner to explain a choice or improve an idea using evidence.
